Some Help With

AnyDesk Version 9.7.4 Update: New Features, Bug Fixes, and Improvements for Windows

The AnyDesk update on May 21, 2026, version 9.7.4 for Windows, introduces a range of noteworthy enhancements and significant bug fixes.

New Features:

- A new red microphone icon has been added to the AnyDesk One Meeting panel to indicate when audio is disabled.
- The AnyDesk meeting feature now shows that the microphone is muted if no microphone device is available.
- New keyboard shortcuts and accessibility improvements have been introduced, such as “Ctrl + K” for quick chat navigation, the “Up Arrow” key for instant message editing, and full keyboard support for the “Add People” menu.

Bug Fixes:

- A problem that displayed an incorrect microphone status when audio was disabled in the device settings within AnyDesk One Meeting has been resolved.
- A crash that prevented the Remote Restart option from functioning correctly in AnyDesk MSI clients has been fixed.
- Clipboard synchronization has been improved.
- Various crashes related to community management, message searching, and navigating long message histories have been addressed.
- New formatting options in the message editor have been added, and visual issues affecting icons and headers have been resolved.
- Improvements have been made to the behavior of naming group chats and managing notifications to avoid alerts in focused channels.
- An issue that caused avatars not to display correctly in notification banners has been corrected.
- The functionality to paste files into draft messages has been restored.
- Stability and navigation within the attachment viewer have been improved.
- Issues affecting unread message tracking, online user counts, and server-side compatibility have been resolved.

 © 2026 www.somehelpwith.com

Other Changes:

- Japanese translations have been updated, along with general user interface enhancements.

This update focuses on enhancing functionality and user experience, as well as fixing bugs that impacted application performance.

 © 2026 www.somehelpwith.com